Frank Barlow was a brave, unlucky general and a great lawyer. Barlow's skedaddle was a rematch of the baptism of fire Barlow underwent against William Mahone at Seven Pines/Fair Oaks on June 1, 1862, where Barlow came out the undisputed winner. At Jerusalem Plank Road in 1864, they would meet once again... The results would be drastically different.

Join us with author John Horn for a look at Barlow's Skedaddle, and its role – and that of its participants – in the overall Petersburg Campaign.
